Progress/Performance Report

Please provide me a written update on your project. Your report should answer the following questions at a minimum.

What have you accomplished so far? Major work still to be completed? What is going well and why? What challenges have you faced? How have you managed those challenges?

Our team has made meaningful progress toward supporting Laundry Love's fundraising and awareness goals. On Thursday, October 22, we volunteered at the North Main Street Laundromat, where we met other volunteers and Laundry Love organizers and had the chance to meet the families who regularly use the service. This experience gave us a better understanding of the organization's impact and the community we are working to support.

In terms of outreach, we are in contact with Roots and are planning a percentage night for the second week of November. We have also partnered with Blacksburg Living, which agreed to feature Laundry Love in its newsletter and may include the organization in the charity section of its magazine in December or January. To support this feature, we have already provided the publisher with information for the article and photos of Laundry Love, and we are working with Virginia Tech photographer Christina Franusich to obtain additional photos. In addition, we asked the Laundry Love supervisor for permission to use the organization's logo on our flyers and Instagram account. We have submitted flyer mock-ups and are currently awaiting approval.

Several tasks remain before we can fully launch our promotional efforts. We must receive approval on the flyer mock-ups and logo usage, finalize the details of the Roots percentage night, and carry out the event in November. We also need to send the new photos to Blacksburg Living and confirm the publication date. Finally, because fundraising is Laundry Love's primary objective, we must identify additional fundraising opportunities.

The project is moving forward steadily, particularly with the Roots percentage night and the Blacksburg Living feature. This progress is largely due to our team's consistent and timely communication. We respond to emails promptly and work to keep each item moving, which has helped us maintain momentum with our contacts.

Our main challenge has been securing fundraising partners. We contacted several other Blacksburg businesses about hosting percentage nights but have not received responses.

We have followed up regularly with each business to show our continued interest. Because we may not hear back from all of them, we are also considering alternative fundraising methods that our team can run directly, such as bake sales or grilled cheese nights. This approach would allow us to stay focused on Laundry Love's main goal of raising funds, even if outside partnerships remain limited.
